

The Robb Report COLLECTION™

THE BUYER'S GUIDE FOR CONNOISSEURS

THE GREEN ISSUE

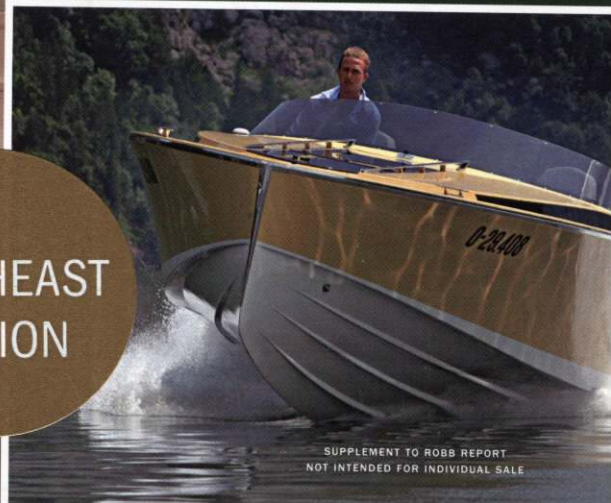

Environmentally Friendly Autos, Furnishings,
Homes, Aircraft, Boats & Golf Courses

FEATURING

The 438 hp Lexus Hybrid
Sustainable Homes on the Market
His-and-Hers Organic Fashions
The Mada Hemp Electric Guitar
Fast and Fuel-Efficient Motorcycles
Smart Home Essentials
Green Chauffeur Services

NORTHEAST
EDITION

Clean Living

Inspiring main rooms free of toxins.

BY AMANDA DAMERON

Manhattan Idyll

"I wanted to create the feeling of a savannah, so the family could roam and entertain," says interior designer Clodagh of a 7,000-square-foot Manhattan apartment she crafted for an art enthusiast couple and their young children. Clodagh, who has a new book, Your Home, Your Sanctuary (Rizzoli), established a calm, harmonious atmosphere by using environmentally responsible materials and incorporating feng shui techniques. She began by applying non-toxic plaster from Art in Construction to the walls, using reclaimed antique oak for the floors, and situating an amber resin low table and a massive walnut dining table from Hudson Furniture in the central living space to create inviting anchors for conversation and entertaining. "Even in hard times, a common room provides a safe haven," says the designer.

Clodagh Design, 212.780.5300, www.clodagh.com

SOURCES

Baba Flooring, 800.542.4812, www.baba.com

Studio Dell'Arte steel,
718.599.3715

Art in Construction,
718.522.7130

Younger Works concrete,
212.233.8251

Hudson Furniture, 212.645.7800, www.hudsonfurnitureinc.com